Aurora Cannabis Launches First Domestically Grown Medical Cannabis Brand in Germany Under New Cultivation License

Investment in the region continues with the launch of IndiMed, the company's first locally grown brand in Germany

Jan. 23, 2025 - Aurora Cannabis Inc. announces today the launch of the company's first German-cultivated medical cannabis product, under the brand IndiMed. Manufactured at Aurora's leading EU-GMP facility in Leuna, Germany, the new brand offers a supply of high-quality, locally grown and sold, medical cannabis for the country's expanding patient base.

The premium product launching from the IndiMed brand is Island Sweet Skunk, dried flower, sativa, 20% THC, <1 % CBD. Product is expected to be available on January 27. IndiMed is cultivated under GACP and EU-GMP guidelines to ensure pharmaceutical-grade quality. The flowers are harvested by hand, dried under controlled conditions, and tested in the state-of-the-art laboratory for purity and active ingredient content.

Aurora leads the global medical cannabis industry with unmatched expertise, driving innovation and progress. Its steadfast commitment to growth in the dynamic German market cements its position as the industry's unrivaled leader.

Aurora's expertise in navigating complex European regulatory frameworks and manufacturing high-quality medical cannabis positions the company as the preferred leader to drive progress in the German market with confidence. By continually setting new global benchmarks, Aurora reinforces its status as the world's largest medical cannabis company operating in nationally legal markets.

Empowering the Next Generation: Aurora Announces German Internship Program

Company Launches Internships at Manufacturing Facility in Leuna, Germany to Cultivate Future Leaders in the Medical Cannabis Industry

Jan. 10, 2025 - Aurora Cannabis Inc. is pleased to announce the launch of an internship program at Aurora's leading EU-GMP facility in Leuna, Germany. In partnership with Erfurt University of Applied Sciences, students of the Horticultural Crop Production course will gain valuable hands-on experience on-site and deepen their understanding of medical cannabis cultivation. Aurora's investment in future industry leaders is one of the many ways Aurora is expanding the frontiers of global medical cannabis.

Aurora's domestic cannabis facility located in Leuna, Saxony-Anhalt, is one of the few sites in Germany permitted to grow medical cannabis. The state-of-the-art indoor facility meets the highest standards of operational excellence, using innovative and sustainable cultivation methods, making it an ideal site for students to learn best practices.

The six-month internship program will focus on all phases of medical cannabis cultivation, including cloning, care, harvesting, packaging and cleaning. Students will also participate in special research and development projects. Aurora's proven expertise in not only developing premium medical cannabis products, but in cultivating great talent, both domestically and globally, has allowed the company to maintain its leadership position as the largest global medical cannabis company operating in nationally legal markets.
